Position Overview:

Our Supply Chain group is expanding because we realize we're getting too big to do everything ourselves and need someone to keep us organized.

Reporting to the Supply Chain Manager, the Supply Chain Administrator will instill calm, order and structure to our systems, data and maybe even some of our people.

In this new role, you'll have all kinds of opportunity to show off your meticulous organization, technical savvy and genuine love for the details. You'll need to be proficient in our various computer systems and we'll look to you for recommendations on how we can be sure our processes and systems make sense and are efficient.

Your days have a lot of variety, as you may be updating information in our ERP, working with vendors to track down shipments or solving the mystery of inventory counts that don't align.

A true multitasker and problem solver, with physical stamina to perform light duty activities associated with inventory counts and coordinating inbound and outbound shipments will enjoy the type of environment where your efforts are immediately noticed, and you have the ability to directly impact outcomes.
